

Jamali introduces new painting style in Three Mystics, Hands & Hearts Exhibition in New York City

Three Mystics, Hands & Hearts opens at the Jamali Gallery in New York, Saturday, November 1st, 4-7 pm.

NEW YORK, NY (PRWEB) October 15, 2014 – The American painter, Jamali, will debut 20 paintings in an entirely new style in an exhibition entitled Three Mystics, Hands and Hearts at the Jamali Gallery, opening on Saturday, November 1st, from 4 to 7 pm.

In this new body of work, Jamali introduces us to three mystics who lead the viewer on a journey exploring hands and hearts -- the universal symbols of spiritual power and love. This diverse collection of personal and monumental-sized works of art were painted by Jamali in his unique, ritualistic technique. Inspired by the spiritual dance of the Sufi and the drip technique of Jackson Pollock, Jamali's ritual entails painting with his feet from within the boundaries of the artwork on the studio floor. At its pinnacle, Jamali's mystical ritual certainly rises to the state of rite, for Jamali exemplifies the views of his favorite poet, Ananda Coomaraswamy, who wrote, "All artistic operations are originally rites. The purpose of the rite... is to sacrifice the old and bring into being a new and more perfect man." In this archetype of man, the poet argues there is no attempt to separate physical and spiritual values, just as Jamali has done so in his life's work.

"In the creation and evolution of my style, Mystical Expressionism, I've explored the roles of myth and ritual, and the mystery and spirituality found in humanity, through the invention of unprecedented textured surfaces created with natural ground pigments," said Jamali. "This series of paintings, seemingly of conventional impasto technique by hand, were in fact created under foot using pigment dispersions. Their idiosyncratic surfaces represent a new achievement, as historically important as my invented medium, Fresco Tempera."
